Perkasie Woman Seeks Damages in Death of Her Husband

SEVERAL CONTINUED

Motion for New Trial Filed in Lapacz-Thomas Damage Action

DOYLESTOWN, June 20.—Louis Moerman, of Doylestown, was yesterday appointed court crier of the several courts of Bucks County by President Judge Hiram H. Keller and Judge Calvin S. Boyer, at a salary of $75 a month. The order handed down directs that he serve at the court's pleasure. Mr. Moerman, who has been a tipstave for a number of years, succeeds James P. Hellings, deceased, as courtcrier.

A petition was filed in the Court of Common Pleas to set aside the Sheriff's sale in the case of William M. Dickhart, assignee of Corn Exchange National Bank and Trust Company vs. Charles A. McGill and Mary S. McGill.

A motion for a new trial and reasons were filed in the Court of Common Pleas in the case of Theodore A. Lapacz, of Allentown, against Jeremiah B. Thomas, in which a verdict was rendered this week for the plaintiff for $2,000. The motion was filed by the defense counsel.

Deliberating a short time a jury yesterday awarded Rudolf Sheerer, of Fox Chase, a verdict for $25 in a suit brought against J. Howard Cliffe, of Ivyland, over the sale of a cow.

The defense opened shortly before noon yesterday in the case of Catherine L. Gerhart, of Perkasie, against the East Coast Coach Company in No. 1 court. The plaintiff is seeking damages as a result of the death of her husband, John A. Gerhart, who was fatally injured on the Lincoln Highway near the Langhorne Speedway on July 4, last year when he was struck by a passenger bus owned and operated by the defendant company between Trenton and Philadelphia. Gerhart died in the Harriman Hospital the day after the accident.

At that time the Gerharts operated a refreshment stand near the automobile race track. In opening to the jury this morning, defense counsel stated that witnesses would be called to show that Gerhart at the time of the accident was standing in the highway motioning for automobiles to drive into his parking space near the roadstand, and that he failed to look in the opposite direction. Mrs. Gerhart who now lives in Perkasie, is seeking $25,000 damages.

A verdict for the defendant was rendered this morning in the case of Earl King, of Philadelphia, against Ernest Buckman, of Buckingham. King brought suit to recover damages for injuries sustained in an automobile accident on the Dublin pike. The case was tried before Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

Settlement has been made in the case of Ethel L. McKee vs. Harry P. Rothemel, an action in trespass, it was announced today.

The following cases have been continued until the next term of civil court in October: William Walton and Tacy Walton, his wife, vs. Lycurgus Dayhoff (trespass); James Laramore and Irma Laramore vs. Albert Kubel and Felton Jones (trespass); Wilbur Thornton vs. Charles B. Ware (trespass); Bertha Raphaelson, a minor, by her father and next friend, Charles Raphaelson, and Charles Raphaelson in his own right, vs. Kenneth Wonder (alias capias in trespass); Holford Millwork Co., Inc., vs. Phoebe A. Smith (Sci Fa Sur Mech. Lien); Theodore R. Lewis vs. Phoebe A. Smith.

COMMENCEMENT AT ST. THOMAS IS TOMORROW

Several Presentations by Pupils of Croydon Classes

CROYDON PERSONALS

CROYDON, June 20.—The annual commencement exercises of St. Thomas Aquinas School will be held Sunday afternoon in the Bristol Pike auditorium. The graduates are Regina Hibbs, Margaret Wolfrum, Ethel Koenig, Joseph Clark and Cathrine Siebold.

Girls in the Sixth Grade will present "Quest of the Pink Parasol." "In the usual way," will be given by the Eighth Grade girls; "A Case of Ain't," by the Fourth and Fifth Grades; "Around the Camp-Fire" will be played by the boys.

This promises to be a very interesting affair and the public is invited.

Miss Helen Cassile and her brother Ralph, of Excelsior avenue, left Friday for New York, where they will remain until July 4th, when they will return with relatives who will make a short stay in Croydon.

Don't forget the strawberry festival at the Wilkinson Memorial Church this afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Vogt, of Excelsior avenue, are enjoying a new Ford sedan.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schweiker and son, of State Road, and Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor and son, of Frankford, will motor to New York where they will be the guests of an old school class of Mrs. Schweiker.

Mrs. Mary Irwin, of State Road and Emily avenue, is spending a few days at her home.

Elwood Polk, of Second avenue, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation in New York with relatives.

The Bristol-Burlington bridge certainly made a boulevard out of State Road if the passing of cars mean anything.

'Girl Was Drugged'

Starr Faithfull, pretty New York madcap heiress, was drugged before her death, according to Dr. Alexander O. Gettler (above), New York city toxicologist, who found a sufficient quantity of veronal in the girl's body to cause a stupor but not death. Dr. Gettler said that the girl must have been in at least a coma when her body entered the water, from which it was pulled at Long Beach, L. I., three days after she had disappeared from her home.

STORM KING HIGHWAY FAVORED BY TOURISTS

Banks of Hudson Make Ideal Vacation Land; Trip Outlined

THRU THE CATSKILLS

Northward along the lordly Hudson winds the famous Storm King Highway, one of America's most excellent main trunk motor highways. Highly scenic sections set amid historic background makes this wide ribbon of concrete a most desirable artery of travel for an attractive motor tour as outlined by the Keystone Automobile Club.

"On the banks of the Hudson in the very heart of a vacation land is located Albany, the objective of this trip," says Russell B. Carty, representative of the club. "Side trips for a more extended vacation journey can be made from Albany to the lake and mountain regions of upper New York State or to the eastward similar journeys lead to New England. The distance to Albany is approximately 270 miles."

From Bristol the tour leads through Langhorne, Newtown and Buckingham to Doylestown. Northward the tour leads over U. S. Route 611 through Easton to a point beyond Martins Creek where a right turn is made into state route 827 which is followed to the first concrete intersection where a left turn leads through Richmond to Mt. Bethel. Here U. S. Route 611 is again met and used to the Delaware Water Gap. From this point the route continues straight ahead over state route 302 which is a short cut to Stroudsburg. From here U. S. Route 209 is followed along the shore of the Delaware River through Dingman's Ferry and Milford to Port Jervis, N. Y.

From this point U. S. Route 6N winds through delightful rural regions of New York to Nanapanoch where steeper grades are met and the journey continues along the foothills of the southern Catskill Hills enroute to Kingston. Here a left turn is made into the Storm King Highway, U. S. Route 9W which winds along the west bank of the lordly Hudson. Some of the most exquisite scenery in North America is passed between Saugerties and the village of Catskill in this legendary land of Rip Van Winkle. At Albany a stop over is suggested as the New York state capital city contains scores of points of interest for tourists.

On the homeward trip the tour leads across the river to Rensselaer where a right turn carries the travelers south to U. S. Route 9 leading through East Greenbush, Hudson, Rhinebeck, Poughkeepsie and Fishkill to Peekskill. Here a right turn leads over U. S. Route 6 across the Bear Mountain Bridge. Northward this roadway combines with the Storm King Highway to West Point, one of the outstanding points of scenic and historic interest on the Hudson. Southward from West Point the tour leads to Highland Falls where a right turn is made into U. S. Route 6 leading through Central Valley, Monroe, Goshen and State Hill to Port Jervis. From this point the remainder of the homeward trip can be made over the same highways used on the outbound journey.

LATEST NEWS

Philadelphia, June 20.—Exploding with terrific force in the rear of a home in the Kensington section early today, a bomb shattered glass doors and windows in the vicinity and aroused scores of residents. No one was injured. The blast took place at the home of Thomas Kostka, 30, a hosiery worker, who lives near E. and Westmoreland streets. Kostka, his wife, Veronica, 25, and their 17-month-old baby Madeline were almost hurled from their beds by the force of the explosion.

County Scout Group Off for Jamboree

Happily packed in the Buccoo Camp truck 16 Scouts and two leaders left with Scout Executive William F. Livermore for Washington, D. C., to attend the third region jamboree being held today and tomorrow.

It is the annual gathering of the championship council camporee patrols from the Third Region Boy Scout Councils, comprising the states of Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware & District of Columbia. The trip this year is made possible under the auspices of the Bucks County Council and Thomas Ross, chairman of the Activities Committee.

The Salem Reformed Church Troop No. 2, of Doylestown, through its victory in the county championship contest at Neshaminy Farms during May will, with Chalfont No. 1, which won third place, represent the Scouting Council.

South Langhorne which won second place could not arrange to take the trip this year. The two patrols will be camping in beautiful Rock Creek Park near the nation's Capitol. They will be camping with nearly 1,000 other boys living through their ability to take care of themselves in matters of health, sanitation, food, housing, clothing and program. There will be no adult leaders near them as they have been trained to exist by their own ability.

The supervision of the camp is under the direction of Regional Executive D. G. VanDeVoe, who was a recent visitor at the Boy Scout headquarters. Camp fires in the evening, a motor bus tour of Washington to also include Mt. Vernon, Arlington and Alexandria have been planned. A thrilling experience for many of the boys will be their visit to the White House to meet President Herbert Hoover.

The Scouts and leaders comprising the party from the Bucks County Boy Scout Council are: From Doylestown Troop No. 2, Carl Leidy, Victor Sellers, Henry Pickering, Fred Billmeyer, Cameron Billmeyer, Earl Wray, Edgar Purmel and Jack Middleton. From Chalfont No. 1: Ward McNair, Ronald Wilson, William Garlin, Frank Hartzel, Fred Hellberg, Ernest Mintel, Howard Boehrer and Walter Heister. The Scouters are: Scoutmaster Walter V. Rutherford, Assistant Scoutmaster Rev. Charles Freeman, of Doylestown Troop No. 2; Troop Commissioner Sol Miller, of Langhorne and Scout Executive William F. Livermore, Jr.

Point System Operating Well At Bristol High School

BASIS OF COMPUTATION

Seventeen students of Bristol high school received honor point awards this week, the cardinal and gray emblems showing the school seal, being presented to those who have gained 30 or more points during the years after they reached senior high school.

The recipients in 12-A are: Leota Campbell, Marvin Collins, Glenis Still, Gertrude Roberts, Joseph Tullio, Anna Brown, Lellis Kallenbach, Ida Phipps. The basis of computation for awards has been worked out by teachers of the high school; and the pupils participating in athletics receive points whether or not they receive letters, providing first or second squads or junior varsity are gained.

Thirty points are required for any one student to receive the attractive felt emblems. The thirty points may be gained at any time during the sophomore, junior or senior years; excellent school work or extra curricular activities during the Freshman year being noted on the record cards however.

Cards are presented to the pupils on which they record the particular phases of endeavor in which they are especially active, the instructors caring for the points awarded. The emblems will be presented about twice yearly. At commencement time in February the first group of scholars received the awards.

The emblem has been changed since the first students were thus honored, the same being made smaller. (Continued on Page 6)

Carney, who resides at 68 Asbury street, in the capital city, was found by passing motorists, lying along the thoroughfare, his hat on the opposite side of the roadway, and a box of candy near the injured one.

After being admitted to the Harriman Hospital, it was found the man was not seriously hurt, and he was released.

The Trentonian stated he was walking toward his home-city, when he was struck by an automobile, the driver not halting.

Condition of Nurse Who Tried Suicide Unchanged

No change is noted in the condition today of Miss Mary Virginia Turner, who is being treated in the Harriman Hospital for a pistol-shot wound, which the young woman has told authorities was self-inflicted.

The attractive graduate nurse of Mt. Sinai Hospital, Philadelphia, who has said she wants to die as their is "nothing to live for," is believed to have attempted suicide after brooding for several weeks over the death of her fiance, Captain Harlan Peffey, of the U. S. Marine Corps. Captain Peffey lost his life in Nicaragua on April 10th.

The young woman who was found shot through the left breast in a summer home on Haunted Lane, Bridgewater, Thursday, lies upon a cot in the Harriman Hospital, tossing to and fro, hoping for the end.

It is thought possible by authorities that her visit to government offices in Washington on Wednesday, with possible gain of knowledge of Peffey's records, caused the climax, the attempt to end her life.

ANTIQUE STATUTES

Several states still cling to their old Sunday "blue laws," but they are under fire and one by one fall before the shafts of progressive public opinion, presumably because the people do not find them in accord with modern thought and life.

Pennsylvania has had her blue laws 137 years and her pro-blue law societies for a large part of that time, but she has just given birth to an anti-blue law association, whose purpose it will be to seek to effect the repeal of this ancient code of Sabbath conduct.

While under the Pennsylvania law the most devoted Sunday advocate cannot escape violating the law several times on a Sunday, the fight in the Keystone state is really a sectional conflict between the rural and urban populations. The rural portion of the population, being virtually unpolluted, and having few temptations—other than cow-pasture baseball and motoring—to break the law, sees no reason why the cities should have legalized Sunday baseball and movies, although the latter have voted five to one in favor of them. Although more than half the state's population is urban, the country still controls the legislature through an old apportionment of representation.

The anti-blue law forces are seeking to capitalize the depression, which magnifies in importance the business the closed-Sunday states lose to their neighboring commonwealths through Sunday amusements that virtually empty the blue states of their populations on the Sabbath.

A ROOSEVELTIAN FALLACY

Have the so-called progressives taken that eminent Democrat, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, or New York, into their camp? If they have not placed their stamp of approval upon him, it is not because he has not espoused their pet causes or prescribed their latest nostrums. Perhaps he hopes to annex the Norris-Pinchot radical element of the Republican party to the conservative part of his own party. At least his radicalism is of the Norris-Pinchot variety.

Roosevelt's latest brain-child is a state subsidy for rural newspapers that they may educate their readers in the mysteries of local government and keep them better informed on public affairs.

This is not a very pretty compliment to the country editor, who certainly will not admit that he neglects news and editorial matter so vital to the welfare of his readers and community. Whether he could use more money is quite another matter.

Is New York's chief executive so innocent of the ways of state subsidies and politics as to believe that subsidized newspapers could remain politically independent and courageously critical? How long would newspapers that dared to expose dishonest politics and government corruption receive such a subsidy? And, what is more important, how long would the readers of a subsidized press retain their confidence in those newspapers? It is essential to good government that the press be above suspicion and free from government control.

"MAKE-BELIEVE" by FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1930, by Faith Baldwin

Mary Lou Thurston, beautiful orphan, seeks a position in the home of wealthy Mrs. Margaret Lorrimer, when the latter's son, Travers, a shell-shocked war veteran, enters. At sight of Mary Lou he becomes wildly excited, takes her in his arms and calls her "Delight" and "wife." Later, Mrs. Lorrimer explains that Travers has mistaken Mary Lou for Delight Hartford, whom he claims he married in England, but of whom no record can be found. Mrs. Lorrimer persuades Mary Lou to assume the role of Delight to help Travers regain his health. Travers is told that, as Delight was so young at the time of her marriage and had since thought him dead, they must start all over again. In her first encounter with Travers, Mary Lou plays her part perfectly. Travers takes new interest in life.

CHAPTER XX.

"HY, Lorry?" asked Margaret Lorrimer.

"That's what she, Delight, called him. He asked me why I didn't?"

"I see—you've worked wonders already," Mrs. Lorrimer told her again.

"Not really. It's the novelty of the situation," explained Mary Lou earnestly, "that makes him so easy to handle. And he is making it easy for me, in more ways than one. If only . . . if only," she said, "we can keep it up and get him more and more back to normal! I would have accepted his offer to teach me to ride even if I hated the thought, which I didn't."

Presently a saleswoman and an assistant arrived from New York and Mary Lou's room took on the semblance of a shop gone mad. There was plenty to choose from and Mrs. Lorrimer selected, eventually, three plain charming daytime dresses, suitable for early winter wear in the country, a suit for town, and all the accessories of lingerie, shoes and gloves. She selected also several afternoon and dinner dresses and evening frocks, admirably suited to Mary Lou's type, delightful in cut and coloring.

Means to an End

"But," cried Mary Lou, blushing in the prettiest evening frock of all, a tight, scant, high-waisted bodice of clear pale green and a skirt formed of many petals of tulle, with the long lines of the mode, entirely charming and becoming—but—these are far too many!"

"I don't think so," Mrs. Lorrimer replied critically, "but they will do for now, at any event. I'm anxious to go to town but that can wait." She smiled at Mary Lou and Mary Lou smiled back, understanding. "But you'll have plenty of use for them. We'll get some young people over, a little later. Jenny and her 'gang,' perhaps. Travers hasn't been anxious for company, you know; has avoided it. But with you here, he'll soon see that he can't coop you up alone for long. It wouldn't be fair to you, and it will be good for him to see people," she added, lower.

Mary Lou nodded again. She could see Mrs. Lorrimer's point. With herself as an excuse, Mrs. Lorrimer would try to win back her son to the give and take of young, happy society again. It would be the best thing that could ever happen to him.

After the bizarre but delectable pajamas had been selected and the clever little negligee coats that went with them, Mrs. Lorrimer sent a tea tray to the saleswoman and her assistant, up in Mary Lou's sitting room, and ordered the car for the late afternoon train. Then she and Mary Lou went down to the library, Mary Lou wearing one of the new frocks, the sheer matching stockings and the completely satisfactory shoes, while the shop people unpacked what little there was left, drank their tea and raved almost incoherently about Mrs. Lorrimer and her—was it niece?

"Ask Mr. Travers if he will join us," Mrs. Lorrimer told Peter, when tea was served in the great book-lined room which contrived to be booky without gloom and comfortable and gay without distraction.

"A Mother's Hope"

He would and did. Refreshed from sleep, amazed, a little ashamed of himself, and suddenly quite hungry, he arrived in the library and was offered tea and toast and ordered to admire Mary Lou's gown.

"She's so easy to fit," said his mother, "that it was like dressing a doll!"

Lorrimer admired, sedate enough in words but his eyes spoke volumes. And Margaret Lorrimer suddenly felt a catch at her heart. If—if he felt in love with Mary Lou, transferred his affections! But of course he would not realize his transference. Still—he'd have to know some day. And then? And if Mary Lou—in her turn—?

Travers' mother felt that it was a consummation devoutly to be hoped for. She had never met a girl she liked as well, trusted as deeply and found as companionable as Mary Lou Thurston. But, the real Delight? Where was she? And did she exist? And was she living somewhere, the wife, perhaps, of the man who sat here, watching Mary Lou's least gesture with an enchanted eagerness?

She put the question from her, the problems it aroused, and spoke hastily of anything, everything, to distract her troubled thoughts. But the problem was not to be set aside as easily as that.

Shortly before Christmas Dr. Mathews, dropping in at tea hour, watched from the windows of the library the slight flurry of snow which came suddenly from an apparently cloudless sky and departed again, leaving the horizon clear, cold, blue; watched, too, Mary Lou and Lorrimer ride up the driveway, watched them from sight, heard them dismount at the main entrance, listened to the faint echo of voices and laughter and the clatter of hooves on the frosty drive, and turned to Mrs. Lorrimer who was watching him.

"He's better, isn't he?" he asked. "Astoundingly so. They ride every day. She's managed to get him up early and to bed early by merely, example. He's going to teach her to play squash. Yes, he's much better. Sleeps well, and his appetite has improved enormously. He still has those—well, spells of brooding. He's quiet then, abstracted, living over things. She pulls him out somehow. They read together, French, English and a little German."

"Neither of them is an accomplished German student. I think she started that to try and get him to a more rational memory of—war, prison, all that sort. She told me that if he could read of the new Germany in the original language she thought it would help; for she felt he'd gotten to thinking too much about what he had suffered, and did not realize that there were men on the other side who had suffered as greatly. So she got grammars and dictionaries and they have started. It's been interesting to watch them. And she's reconciled him to Jenny and her crowd. They come over now and then."

"What have you told Jenny?" asked the doctor.

"Just that Delight is a girl Travers knew during the war and that I've asked her to live with us, as my companion, as she is now alone in the world."

"She believes you?"

"Yes. Suspects a romance, but says nothing about it. Jenny is hard-boiled—or so she thinks—but she is discreet."

"And if," Mathews asked slowly, "if Jenny should be right, and out of this experiment of ours romance should come—what then?"

"Oh," Margaret made a little helpless gesture, "I don't know! I—I'd wish it, of course. For my own sake as well as for Travers'. But—until we know for certain. . . ?"

Always on the Go

"I seem to be making an impression on this plate of toast," the doctor told her. "They were old friends by now. 'And in your case, Delight, I certainly do approve, for you use up enough energy for six girls in 24 hours, and this household is so fashionable it dines late. But what about your figure?'"

"What about it?" asked Mary Lou, laughing, "I stay the same weight year round almost. Remember, I'm riding every day—and Lorry is going to let me jump next Spring. And I've my daily dozen. And do a lot more besides. And so I'm hungry most of the time," she confessed.

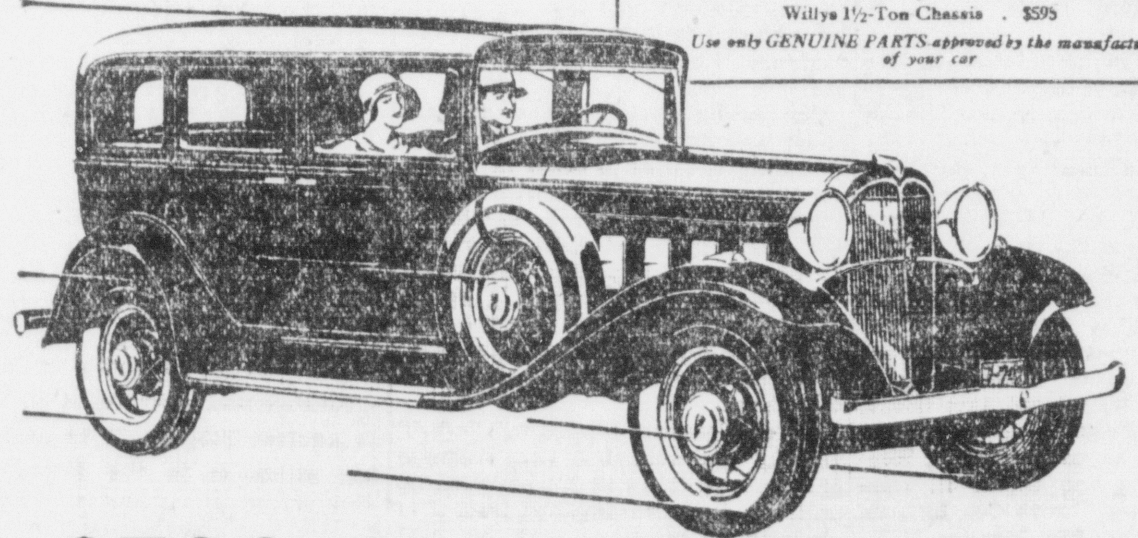

There was a scratch at the library door and an inquiring whine.

"Oh, please, may he come in?" Mary Lou begged. "He's been awfully good about waiting outside."

Lorrimer rose and opened the door. Konig bounced past him, leaped across the room and sat himself down at Mary Lou's feet, with a huge sigh of relief, his red tongue flicking across her hand and his entire body one welcoming wriggle. Mary Lou tickled his pointed ears and gave him a forbidden lump of sugar.

Mathews raised an eyebrow at Margaret Lorrimer, remembering the long years when dogdom had been banished from this house.

The new Willys-Knight costs $700 less than last year's car . . . Yet it is larger, faster, livelier . . . It is the only American car powered by the patented double sleeve-valve engine—the same type of motor used in some of the most costly European cars . . . Large scale production, improved manufacturing and merchandising methods, make the Knight engine available to American motorists at a price lower than that of many less modern power plants . . . ## ANALYZE THE VALUE

1 Weigh, in your own mind, the importance of grace and beauty in a motor car. Then consider, one after another, the various factors which are responsible for the new Oldsmobile's striking appearance... its smart and distinctive new front end design—its long, low, fleet-looking lines—its tastefully appointed and luxuriously finished bodies by Fisher.

2 Consider, next, the desirability of capable all-round performance. Then take the new Oldsmobile's wheel. Experience the thrilling getaway—the brilliant speed—the increased power and smoothness of this great new car. Test, too, its remarkable ease of control—in starting, shifting, steering, and braking—comparable with that of the highest priced cars.

3 When you have defined your requirements on these points, and applied them to Oldsmobile, consider the importance of a third great factor—dependability. With all its important new features, the 1931 Oldsmobile gives you the same proved fundamentals which have won the praise of nearly a quarter of a million owners during the past three years.

4 Finally, consider the importance of price in relation to all these things. Then analyze Oldsmobile's value in terms of what you get for what you pay. You will find that the new Oldsmobile is not only finer than ever in quality, but that it is also lower in price. And lower price plus finer quality makes the new Oldsmobile's value doubly impressive.

EXAMINE OLDSMOBILE'S IMPORTANT NEW FEATURES IN BODY, ENGINE AND CHASSIS... THE SYNCO-MESH TRANSMISSION... A NEW QUIET SECOND GEAR... NEW DOWNDRAFT CARBURETION... COORDINATED STARTER AND THROTTLE... A NEW CARBURETOR-SILENCER... NEW INSULATED FISHER BODIES... OPTIONAL UPHOLSTERY... A DEEPER, STURDIER FRAME... FIVE WIRE OR FIVE DEMOUNTABLE WOOD WHEELS... MORE DISTINCTIVE APPEARANCE... ## HIBERNIANS IN GREAT BATTLE DEFEAT EMILIE

(By T. M. Juno)

"Eddie" Roe had a field night last evening. The second-sacker for the Hibernians certainly did upset things for the Emilie team who had won two victories in a row.

To begin with the Hibernians' key-stone guardians robbed the "Farmers" out of two runs in the third canto when he ran to right field and made a bare-handed catch of T. Praul's short lift with runners on second and third. The hit looked as if it was a sure single until Roe reached out of nowhere to catch the ball.

Then in the third with a runner perched on second base, Roe drove the longest home-run of the Bristol Twilight League when the hit slammed from his bat hit the fence in the right center field on the first bounce.

To make matters even worse, Emilie tied the score in the sixth only to have Roe come back in the "Hibboes" part and win the game with a single to left, scoring Brady with the winning run.

The final score of the fray was: A. O. H., 9; Emilie, 8. The game was played on St. Ann's field and was the fourth victory for the Hibernians who moved into a tie with the Independents for third place.

Both teams used two pitchers. Neither Lawler nor Tranotti was able to stand the assimilating of both teams' batters. Tranotti retired in favor of Watson in the fourth, while Sullivan relieved Lawler in the sixth when Emilie tied the score.

"Gene" Dugan, captain of the "Hibs," also helped matters along by hitting for the circuit with two men on base. This was the blow that sent Tranotti to the showers and for the time being had given the Hibernians an 8-1 lead.

Emilie took the lead in the third when a tally crossed the plate. Tranotti was safe on Dugan's error; F. Hibbs was safe on Thompson's error; Watson singled to right, scoring Tranotti; Bruce fouled to Dugan; R. Praul struck out; Roe ran to right field and made a wonderful catch of T. Praul's short fly.

The "Hibs" came right back to score three times. With two out, Dugan singled to left; Roe hit a long home run, scoring Dugan ahead of him; Ennis doubled to left; D. Still booted Sullivan's roller and Ennis scored; McCafferty struck out.

Five more went to the "Hibboes" in the fourth. Dougherty singled to left and was sacrificed to second by Lawler; Thompson scored Dougherty with a hit to center; Brady was passed; Dugan slammed a home run in the tall grass in left field, also scoring Thompson and Brady; Roe was safe on Still's error; Ennis whiffed; Roe stole second and counted on Sullivan's single to center; McCafferty struck out.

Emilie scored two runs in the fifth. With one out, Hibbs was hit with a pitched ball; Watson doubled to left, counting Hibbs; Bruce singled to left and Watson came home; Bruce went to second on the throw-in; B. Praul hit to Dugan and Bruce was out at third, Dugan unassisted; T. Praul breezed.

Emilie tied the score in the sixth. L. Hibbs fanned; Rockhill doubled to right; D. Still was passed; Tranotti flied out to Dugan; F. Hibbs tripled to center, scoring Rockhill and Still; Watson singled to right, counting Hibbs; Bruce was passed; B. Praul singled to left, counting Watson; T. Praul singled to right, scoring Bruce, but B. Praul was out trying to score, Ennis to Brady.

Brady was passed to begin the Hibs' sixth. He was sacrificed to second by Dugan and scored when Roe broke up the fray with a single to left center.

In Wagner-Tinker Roles

By HARDIN BURNLEY

RECENTLY Rogers Hornsby aroused considerable fan discussion by declaring that Elwood English, of the Chicago Cubs, is the best shortstop in baseball. Coming from his manager that was a fine appraisal indeed but, while conceding "Woody's" exceptional ability, few would rate English above or on a par with Joe Cronin, of the Washington Senators; Charley Gelbert, St. Louis Cardinals; Travis Jackson, N. Y. Giants, or Lyn Lary, N. Y. Yankees.

Cronin, especially, has been the shortstop for more than two years, and thus far this season he seems better than ever.

Gelbert, too, who played so brilliantly in the 1930 World Series, is meeting the most exacting expectations. Unless they crack, both Joe and Charley will go into baseball tradition in a few more seasons as worthy heirs of Hans Wagner and Joe Tinker, whose fame has set the standard for at least two generations of shortstops.

While Hornsby is happy over English and the Cronin-Gelbert-Jackson-Lary brand of play stir nothing but enthusiasm, two major league clubs at least are sorely worried over their shortstop problems. And curiously enough, both these teams—the Cleveland Indians and the Chicago White Sox—are managed by men who were great in that position. Donie Bush has been experimenting almost desperately with Chisox shortstop talent, while Roger Peckinpaugh—his team in the throes of a dreadful May slump—had to trade the stellar Lew Fonseca for Willie Kamm to bolster up the right side of his defense at third, and still he had to worry over the s. s. position.

Some Chisox and Indian fans are so sore they're insisting that "Donie" and "Peck" limber up their old joints and return to the infield plots where they were wont to dazzle in days of yore.

Ton for ton . . . mile for mile Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks cost less to operate

It is a matter of record, among more and more large fleet operators, that Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks give a lower transportation cost than any other truck of equal capacity in the market.

These firms are finding, through experience, that Chevrolet sedan deliveries are capable of 20 miles or better, to the gallon of gasoline; that Chevrolet 1½-ton trucks are making fuel records which are relatively just as high. That it costs very little to keep Chevrolet trucks in first-class working order. That Chevrolet service charges on both parts and labor are exceptionally low. That the active life of Chevrolet trucks extends well past the 50,000 mileage mark.

To place your hauling on a minimum-cost basis—and keep it there—put Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks to work. A wide variety of Chevrolet-built bodies is now available. And delivered prices of Chevrolet trucks, complete and ready for work, are based on low chassis-cost and low body-cost, plus only reasonable charges for handling and financing.
